

I'll love you no matter what...

...but your cigarettes
are hurting me.

Remember, when you smoke...so does your pet.

Tobacco Action Coalition of Long Island

www.breathefreely.org

Are you hurting your pets without really knowing it?

Secondhand smoke contains more than 4,000 substances, more than 40 of which are known to cause cancer in humans or animals.

Pets can develop respiratory infections, lung inflammation and asthma when breathing in secondhand smoke.

Dogs have a higher risk of developing certain kinds of cancer when exposed to secondhand smoke.

Cats exposed to secondhand smoke have more than double the risk of feline lymphoma.

Tobacco and Nicotine Replacement Products, such as patches and gum, should be kept out of the reach of pets and disposed of properly. These items are attractive to pets and can lead to poisoning.

No smoke in your home means better health for your pets!